PROPOSALS

For Publishing by Subscription,

A NEAT EDITION OF THE

KENTUCKY LAWS.

IT is proposed, that this edition be printed in only the Laws that are of a general nature, and will consist of the laws lately revised, and to be revised; there will be no more given of local or private laws, than their title and time of passage. From the best calculations, it will extend to about six hundred pages.

CONDITIONS.

I. This work will be printed in two Numbers, large Octavo, with a neat letter, on good paper, and bound in boards. The first Number to contain all the laws of a General Nature already revised.

II. The price to subscribers will be Three Dollars; one half to be paid at the time of subscribing, and the balance on the delivery of the Second Number.

III. The work will be put to press as soon as five hundred copies are subscribed for, and the first Number completed with all possible dispatch; the second will be delayed until the revised is finished.

IV. If the laws do not exceed five hundred Pages, there will be added an appendix, containing an Abstract of the Duties of a Justice of the Peace, taken from the most Approved Authors, with the different forms of proceeds in that office; as well as the most invaluable forms of conveyance, &c. There will also be added, a copious index, whereby any article may be easily found by inspection; and the Constitution of this State and the United States will be prefixed.

V. Those who subscribe for twelve copies shall have one extra.

As the form in which the Acts of Assembly have been printed, renders them not only un-handy to carry about, but also more liable to injury and therefore less durable; and as it is probable that the general laws will hereafter remain a considerable length of time with little or no alteration; it is the object of this work to remedy those evils, by furnishing them in a portable form, and of durable materials.

VIENNA, May 26.

The headquarters of Gen. Buonaparte, are no longer at Leobach. 12,000 men have proceeded towards Gratz, and the whole French army is preparing to march for Italy, and thence to France. Our forces in Italy will amount to 30,000 men. This army is to restore the ancient order of things, to restrain the Jacobins, and to assist at the cession and exchange of territory. We are told that the archduke Charles will be appointed governor of Gallacia and the newly conquered country of Poland.

Nearly 2000 disaffected persons, from Gratz, had assembled to receive Buonaparte, but they had his most express disapprobation, and were threatened to be surrounded and sacrificed as traitors to their country, if they did not instantly retire. It is said Buonaparte will be the first envoy of the French Republic in our court.

BRUXELLES, May 18.

The French will not leave a crown in the conquered countries. Hoche has imposed on the country between the Sieg, the Rhine and Lahn, the Nidda and the Mein, a military contribution of 3,725,000 livres.

Letters from Germany mention, that the sudden peace of the empire with the French Republic, without the mediation of Berlin, has disappointed the ambition of Prussia. The Czar of Russia signified to Prussia, that no change must be made in the empire; and the Marquis Luchefini is upon his return to Berlin, having been very coolly received in the Austrian cabinet.

WURTSBURG, May 12.

By letters from Bamberg we learn, that 600 Austrians entered Nuremberg and that hostilities took place between them and the Prussians. They begin to fear here very seriously a war between Prussia and Austria.

PARIS, May 8.

It is reported, that yesterday there was a meeting at Charles Delacroix's, minister of foreign affairs, of a number of persons of distinction; among others, the Prussian ambassador, and the first president of the Rhenish-Germanic convention. The object of this meeting was a discussion on the limits of the Rhine.

It is asserted that the deputy from Mentz very strongly insisted on the union of his country to France, in conformity with a decree made the second year of the republic. And it is said, that, to do away an objection which was started, namely, that the Convention of Berlin would not easily consent to a dismemberment of the Empire; he proved that the Germanic confederation had been already violated by two of the princes electors—the Margrave of Baden and the Duke of Wirtemberg—in the two treaties which they had concluded in France; for these two sovereigns had yielded to the republic, the former the county of Sponheim situated behind the Mahe—the latter, the county of Montbelliard: That the emperor himself, in giving up the Liege country, also violated the constitution, by consenting to the dismemberment of one of the clauses of the confederacy; and that the king of Prussia, not having opposed that dismemberment, would now come with a very bad grace to oppose the making of the Rhine the French limits, under the pretext that he was unwilling to see the Germanic constitution violated.

This answer made a great impression on the mind of the minister for foreign affairs, and this point it seems, will be the first submitted to the congress, where the ministers of the princes of the empire are to be present, with those of the kings of Prussia and England, as also those of Brandenburg and Hanover, and those of the kings of Naples and Sardinia as mediators.

May 15.

M. Azzara, minister of Spain arrived at Florence from Rome on 21st April. It is supposed that the political and religious differences between the Pope and Spain will not be soon settled.

May 26.

When Pichegru first appeared in the chair, his manners were simple and modest, and he was without any mark of distinction or even an uniform. His voice is clear and sonorous, his expression easy and natural, his mind clear and cultivated. He fills his office perfectly, and it is expected, that he will be as useful in the council, as had his private grievances redressed, viz. London, Marlborough and La Nymphe.

The wind did not favor our proceeding to sea, during our silence, for by this we wish to be understood, we were in state of silence, as there was no sign of an act being passed; we could not be deceived in this point, as the freedom of the press is allowed, and several of us in the fleet can read. Our reasons are, obviously not confined alone to the act not being passed, although it lay dormant for fourteen days, private instructions were sent to each commander in the fleet, of which we are not ignorant as will be found in the sequel. Full allowances were granted to some ship's companies, supposed to be the leading ones, and not to others, which caused a suspicion throughout the whole fleet. The ships remaining at Spithead, had their private grievances redressed, though many days had elapsed, not a sign of these being redressed; be it understood by private grievances—trying by court martial such officers as had repeatedly behaved in a tyrannical and oppressive manner, and the dignified station they filled.

Private murmurs were heard—at length the breaths of fear, and indignation at being neglected burst forth on the 7th inst. It was then, oh! horrid to relate, that we found out the scheme laid to sacrifice some of the brightest gems that ever adorned this, or any other country.

Will not the following melancholy catastrophe, evince the whole world of our assertions?—On Sunday the 7th inst. ever to be recorded, a gallant chief, (not indeed so, but as such represented by an honorable member, Mr. Whitebread)—perhaps the honorable member committed a mistake, it was surely his gallantry with the fair sex he alluded to, for his country is ignorant of any gallant action by him performed, with his officers in concert, eluded the boats of the fleet proceeding on board the Marlborough, which was fortunate enough on their side; as the London's officers had the quarter deck guns loaded with grape-cannon shot, ready to fire into them. Admiral Colpoys had all his hands sent aft, and informed them, there was something amiss among the ships at St. Helens, and desired them to go below, run in the lower deck guns, and lower the jibs; and then part of them to return on deck and hoist in the booms, which was complied with. The fame being done, all hands were ordered below; at the same time the officers appeared on deck and the marines were armed and counted, with bayonets fixed and pieces loaded. Four of the main deck guns were ordered to be loaded with grape and cannon-shot, ruin as far as the breechings would allow, to be ready to point forward on the ship's company. Before the people could well comply with the orders of going below, the captain ordered Lieutenant Boyer to fire on some of the people that were forward under the fore-castle, which he did not immediately comply with, upon which captain Griffiths presented his pistols at him, and swore he would put him to death that moment if he did not instantly comply with his orders; in this dilemma, the lieutenant fired, and wounded two men.

The ships company being now all below, and hearing there were some boats alongside they expressed their wish to know what they wanted, but in vain, the hammocks and spars from the booms were thrown on all the hatchways, and the officers putting a little aside, so as to give room, fired assiduously the hatchways on the unarmed men below, and wounded several, part of which are since dead; in the mean time, the little middlemen were busily employed, with proper implements, prepared for the purpose, to cut away the port ropes of the middle deck, well knowing that the heart of a seaman could not hurt a boy. At last, irritated with seeing so much blood spilt, we were determined to force the gunners store room to procure small arms; they then drew cartridges from some of the lower deck guns, to supply them with powder, taking care to secure the magazine with proper centinels. Thus armed they were determined to gain the middle deck, to confer with the officers, on which the marines were summoned to take the oath of allegiance to the officers, but they, provoked at pre-dictated murder, did not consent, nor would they fire, but went and joined their unhappy shipmates. The upper deck was then stormed, in spite of opposition; the officers called for quarters and then fled. The heat of passion by this time laboured, and they were shed with much more humanity than the most part of them deserved. This is an account of the unhappy affair, and we trust will be warning to officers of the navy to use men with less tyrannic power.

Seamen dangerously wounded, } and since dead, } Marines slightly wounded, } Officers wounded, one in the arm, } and has since suffered amputation. } Thus ended the first action that ever the brave admiral Colpoys, as some are pleased to call him, was in; and had it not been owing to the kind interference of the delegates and boat crews, which arrived at the time they had got the better of the officers, that gallant officer with all his associates, would have fell victims to an enraged crew, which their rashness justly merited. They were then confined each to his separate cabin, to be tried when they arrived at St. Helens. It was the general opinion of the seamen, and much to their credit be it spoken, on the ships arrival at St. Helens to deliver the officers, except admiral Colpoys, whom they were certain was the instigator of the whole, up to the civil law. On the 10th it was proposed, that the opinion of each ship's company should be given in writing, folded up, and not to be opened until the opinions were delivered on board of the London, and the delegates to each ship present. A signal was then made by the London, for all the delegates to attend—(May 11) and deliver their respective ships opinion when there appeared, in his favour, at least that he should be tried in his own ship's company's mode of punishment. For immediate execution.

Majority in his favour }
The admiral and his officers were then delivered to Portsmouth magistrates.

May 24.
Yesterday afternoon an express arrived at the admiralty from St. Helens, with accounts of a very unpleasant nature. The rivalry among the seamen still rages at that port, with additional symptoms of violence and alarm. On Monday two regiments marched into the garrison at St. Helens. The seamen conceiving that the troops were brought there to coerce them, seized upon the gun boats, and pointed them against the garrison, showed every disposition to proceed to the most violent extremities.

On Sunday evening last Lord Bridport was off Plymouth sound, working down the Channel.
The delegates who were sent from the fleet at Plymouth to Portsmouth, returned on Sunday. The different ships were immediately manned, three cheers given and the men returned to their accustomed duty.
A full meeting of the opposition members including those in the interest of the Duke of Grafton, the duke of Northumberland, and the Marquis of Landowne, was held on Monday evening at which it was determined to give unanimous support to the promiscuous motion for a parliamentary reform.

On Sunday last, as the Impregnable was passing down the North, her crew compelled the seamen of every other ship they passed by to cheer them, and fired a shot at the St. Helena for having been noisy in complying with this mandate, which damaged and cut away some of her after rigging.

BASLE, May 17.
Many letters from Frankfort assure us that a strong column of the army of the Sambre and Meuse was on the march for Hanover, to oblige the king of England to make peace. If there be any truth in this report, Prussia, which has guaranteed the neutrality of Hanover, must concur with the French Directory.

HAGUE, May 4.

There being now three classes. We requested likewise, that the purser's eightieth should be taken off, which was complied with; the weight of the different articles were as follows:—
Bread, - - - - - 14 ounces Cheese, - - - - - 9 do.
Butter, - - - - - 12 do.

Of spirituous liquors and small beer, the purser had an eighth out of each gallon, those eightieths are now taken off, and we have the full measure.
His majesty's pardon was then requested, to exempt our brethren from having any punishment inflicted on them for trivial misdemeanors, and our non-compliance to the order given for going to sea—his majesty was pleased to grant the same—we then returned to the ordinary discharge of our duty, as desired, but from that we never deviated, during our perseverance, except weighing anchor, which we positively refused, unless our requests were complied with.—We then went to St. Helens, distant from Spithead about three miles, on the signal being made by the admiral (excepting three ships of the line, which had not to pay to the inhabitants of the Bartina Republic, the interests and ac-cruers due to them. This act of justice is more pleasing to the Dutch than to the Kullians.

June 1.

The minds of the true French are firm. The choice of the people discovers that they with the constitution; that they wish for the return of justice and order. The list of candidates proprietor for the place of Director is sufficient to convince us of the spirit which prevails in the council of Five Hundred. They manifest a strong inclination to support the government, when they place men worthy of it in authority to give honor and to secure the greatest respect to it.

SALEM, July 18.

By our last French papers as late as the 2d June, we find that all things agree with the hopes of peace with the empire. A voice had assured the French of satisfaction for the injuries they had received. The English missioner was at Vienna on the 3d of May, and reports were spread that Prussia would inflict upon the mediators for a general pacification. The measures of Prussia had not given pleasure to the empire, and a rupture was one of the fears which was entertained in Europe.

The French legislature on 21st of May annulled the arrest of the Colonial assembly of the Isle of France, by which some of the inhabitants were to be sent from the island, and have appointed a new commission on Colonial affairs. The report respecting St.
Domingo, was most favorable to the hopes of its disinterested inhabitants, who have fled from it, and a full enquiry into the conduct of the commissioners is to be instituted. The French treaty with the Pope has been ratified, but the ecclesiastical affairs between Spain and Rome are not yet adjusted. We learn that the Dutch are cruising off Scotland with success.

STOLEN

FROM the plantation of the subscriber, about two and a half miles from Lexington, on Tuesday night the 1st instant, a sorrel Mare, 3 years old, a natural trotter, about 14 hands high, no brand, her tail is docked, she has a low carriage before, and keeps her nose out, a blaze down her face, and a dark spot on her buttock. Also, strayed from the same place on Thursday the 10th of this instant, three steers, one a grey white, supposed to be about six years old, a very large beast and supposed to weigh about five hundred, an other a red steer, with a white back, about six years old, with short horns, supposed to weigh about five hundred, and the third aged steer, with a white face, about four years old, supposed to weigh about four hundred, all in good order: they were seen on the Tate's creek road, and it is supposed they may attempt to cross the Kentucky River, as they were purchased of some person or persons in Lincoln county, by Mr. John Hunt of Lexington. A reward of ten dollars will be given for the Mare, and thief, or five dollars for the steers, and six dollars will be given for taking up the said steers, so that the owner may get them, and all other reasonable charges.

Mansfield August 14.

NOTICE.

THAT commissioners appointed by the court of Woodford county, will meet on the 31st day of September next on the land on which I now live, to take the depositions of certain witnesses, respected the calls of an entry containing one thousand acres, made in the name of Wm. M'Connell, on a preemption warrant, and do such other acts as shall be deemed necessary and agreeable to law.

WILLIAM M'CONNEL.

July 20.

Left in my Store, some time last spring, A Box Containing Twenty Hair-cloths, and lined on the under side with green, some have the maker's name, "James Darrach, Philadelphia," in them. The owner is desirous to take them away and pay charges, otherwise they will be sold to defray expenses, as they are injuring very much, having been wet.
WILLIAM LEAVY.

Lexington, August 17.

NOTICE.

ALL those indebted to the estate of JOSEPH BARNETT, deceased, either by bond, note or otherwise, are requested to come forward and make payment, as no longer indulgence can be given. And all those having any demands against the said estate for lands or otherwise, are requested to attend at Bardtown on the second Tuesday in October next, at which time and place all the lands of the said Barnett, either by patent, entry or survey, will be exposed to sale on six months credit, the purchaser giving approved security. Also funds lots in the town of Hartford, Hardin county, the property of the said Barnett, to be sold on the same terms.— Due attendance will be given by

Thirty Dollars Reward

WILL be given for apprehending a man who calls himself William James, of a middle size, fair hair, dressed with an Zel-skin, dark skin—had on when I saw him, a coarse blue cloth coat, nankin breeches and jackets, the breeches tied at the knee with white rags. The said James, yellow day sold me a saddle, and received payment, which afterwards proved to be the property of Mr. Burrows.

FRANCIS BARRET.

One hundred Dollars reward.

WHEREAS a certain FRANCIS BARRET has, at sundry times, stolen several articles of merchandise from the several stores in this town, many of which have this day been found concealed at his house—the inhabitants of Lexington have raised by subscription the above reward and offer it to any person who will apprehend him, in order that he may be tried and punished for his villainous practices.

The said Barret is a Baptist Preacher of some eminence in his profession, and has long imposed himself upon the world as a man of sanctity and good morals. His person is about the common size, rather corpulent, and his countenance serious and prepossessing —his dress, when last in this town, was indicative of his profession, and it is probable he may still continue to preach in order to impose upon those who may be strangers to his real character.

It is hoped that every good citizen will use his best exertions to bring to notorious and hypocritical offender to justice. He resided in the neighbourhood of Nathaniel Ashby, and may probably still be lurking about that place.

Lexington, August 16, 1797.

Notice is hereby given to the county surveyors for the State of Kentucky and the surveyors of the State and Continental line that unless they forward their returns and settle up their accounts, agreeable to an act of assembly, passed in the year 1792, that the said law will be immediately put in force against them for the penalties by them incurred. By order of the Board of Trustees for the Transylvania Seminary.

SAMUEL BLAIR, T. S.

August 17, 1797.

I shall attend with the commissioners appointed by the court of Fayette county, on Tuesday the twenty-ninth of September next, if fair, if not the next fair day, at a Cherry tree, Hickory and Red Oak, at the corner where the survey of Edward Bradley's preemption was begun, on the east side of Jettamine creek, then and there to take the depositions of sundry witnesses to perpetuate their testimony respecting an entry of fourteen hundred acres, made in my name, adjoining said Bradley's preemption, and do such other things as may be necessary and agreeable to law.

HENRY PAYNE.

August 18, 1797.

NOTICE.—That commissioners appointed by the court of Montgomery county will meet on the 6th day of September next, if fair, if not the next fair day, in said county, for the plantation of Nicholas Anderson, to perpetuate testimony, to establish the following entry—Nicholas Anderson enters 400 acres of land on a p. e. entry, on the east side of branch of Small mountain creek, to include a cabin and a spring, entered in May 1780.

NICHOLAS ANDERSON.

August 2, 1797.

I will sell a few Barren lands in the following tracts of LAND, for ready money, viz.

Eight thousand seven hundred & fifty acres lying on the lower side of Raven creek, a well branch of the north fork of Licking, in the county of Harrison.
Five hundred and fifty acres on said Raven creek above.

One equal moiety of four thousand acres of land, lying on the waters of the north fork of Licking river.

Also about thirteen hundred acres on the waters of Eagle creek.

The whole of the above tracts of land are patented in the name of William Walker, ten several years ago; and no part of them have ever been claimed by any person having prior claims to him.—The subscriber is fully authorized, by a power of attorney from the aforesaid William Walker, sen-sen, to sell the said lands, and make deeds to the purchaser, warranting the same against the aforesaid William Walker, sen, and his heirs. But if any part of the said lands should be lost by prior claims, then the purchase money, with interest, shall be returned for that part so lost.
